

Animals in danger

Siberian tiger

Siberian tiger is a rare species of tiger, known also as the tiger and Amur tiger Korean, Chinese or North tiger Manchurian tiger.'

Females give birth to 2-4 puppies, after a gestation period of 104 days. Siberian tigers are solitary hunters. Cubs stay with their mother two years and then start to take hold own territory. Males are removed from where they were born, but females often remain close to the mother's territory.